Myanmar

Myanmar is emerging from decades of isolation, and as such it is more conservative than nearby countries. Yangon boasts charming colonial architecture; in contrast, Bagan is an archaeological zone that rivals the Temples of Angkor in its beauty. Mandalay the former royal capital and Inle Lake in the Shan State are other not-to-be-missed destinations making ideal bases for boating and hiking excursions.

Our school trip includes visits to some of the country's most beautiful regions where students will have the opportunity to undertake a service-learning project to assist a rural community. It will also allow students to gain an insight into Burmese culture and society and will feature a cycling trip around the temple city of Bagan, a visit to Inle Lake as well as a thorough exploration of Yangon.

Mongolia

A land of grassy steppe, high mountains and the vast cold Gobi Desert, everything about Mongolia is on a grand scale, apart from its population! Its skies and vistas give the feeling of endless space, dotted here and there. Once part of Genghis Khan's great Mongol Empire, the country is now home to peaceful nomads who still make up a third of its inhabitants, and it ranks as one of the most remote and exciting destinations to explore in the world.

Mongolia offers a broad choice of activities and educational experiences. On a trip to Mongolia you can take part in a lasting community project by the shores of Lake Hovsgol, the cleanest lake in the world, travel by train across one of the least explored regions of central Asia, and challenge your group to trek a mountain range.
